Our client is one of the world's largest insurance and financial services organisations, operating globally and responsible for providing highly successful financial products and services across numerous markets.

Growth of their highly successful and profitable Life Insurance and Pension division has created an exciting opportunity for a Product Manager to join them and manage an existing product portfolio across a range of Life Investments including guaranteed income bonds, onshore investment bonds, unit linked investment bonds and other savings and investment products, all for distribution through a regulated sales force.

Based on the south coast and working closely with the actuarial and sales teams, the successful Product Manager will also take responsibility for new product development, ensuring that the product functions properly and the necessary IT support and marketing collateral exists in order that the products are effective in the market place.

The successful Product Manager will need to demonstrate that they have gained experience in the development of Life Investment products, combined with an understanding of what needs to be done in order to drive process and deliver a product to market from inception to completion and for that product to achieve sales success amongst its target customer base.

Desirable personal characteristics will include excellent verbal and written communication skills, high levels of motivation, creative in outlook and confident in nature, happy to work in a matrix management structure, willing to set and manage priorities and with the flair to deliver effective results.

In return for your commitment and success, our client can offer an attractive salary and benefits package, the opportunity to work on some interesting projects and genuinely good career progression.

All applications will be dealt with in confidence.
